A NEW DEPARTURE!
BEST PLOW IN THE WORLD!

THE SYRACUSE CHILLED PLOW CO. of Syracuse, N. Y.

Are now putting on the market a Plow that is as much superior to any Plow heretofore made as the Plows of the past few years have been superior to those made half a century ago.

It combines all the excellencies of any Plow in use.

It obviates all the objections made to any other Plow.

In addition it embraces several new features of the great value, for which we have obtained exclusive Patents.

Its Beam, Clevis, Jointer Standard and Wheel Standard will be STEEL, and its mold board will be a composition of steel and iron chilled under a process for which we have also obtained an exclusive Patent. It will be called

THE SYRACUSE CHILLED STEEL PLOW

Its weight will be eighteen pounds less than our present styles.

A first-class Steel Plow, made in the ordinary way, full rigged, will sell for twenty-two dollars. Inferior Steel Plows retail from sixteen to nineteen dollars.

The price of our new Plow will be but Seventeen Dollars, and it will be the cheapest Agricultural Implement ever sold.

Its mold board will outwear three of the very best kinds of the ordinary steel mold boards.

It will scour in soils where all steel plows and all other plows have hitherto proved a failure.

With this Plow will be introduced a corrugated Plow Point and Jointer Point, on which we have also obtained a Patent, and which is also a great improvement, both as regards strength and wear.

The Jointer can be shifted so as to take more or less land, and also more or less patch, and it can always be kept on a line with the Plow.

The wheel will run under the beam or one side of it as desired, and always kept in line.

The beam is adjustable for Spring or Fall Plowing, and also for two or three horses.

The handles can be adjusted to accommodate a man of long or short stature.

It is a perfect Plow.

Wooden beams are going out of use because they shrink, swell and warp, and never run two seasons alike.

Iron beams are too heavy.

Malleable handles become demoralized and bend, which is much worse than to break.

A Steel beam is the necessity of the day. It is three times as strong and very much lighter than any other style.

When we say a Mold board is chilled, the farmers know it is so.

We do not palm off on them a composition of various metals and call it chilled metal.

We want agents for this new Plow in every town in this State.

We can give but a very small discount to them, but we will pay the Railroad Freight.

We propose to place this Plow in the hands of farmers as near the cost of manufacture as possible.

It will be the best Agricultural Implement ever sold.

It shall also be the cheapest.

Persons therefore who are not willing to act as agents on the principle that "a nimble sixpence is better than a slow shilling," need not apply for an agency.

No Plows on commission. All sales absolute. ☞ This is the only Steel Chilled Plow in the World.

Steel costs several times more than Iron.

But this Plow, full rigged, by giving small discounts, can be sold for Seventeen Dollars. Compare this price with that of any Iron Plow ever made.

It is cheaper than any other Plow now made would be at five dollars and a half.

Where there are no agents we will, on receipt of Seventeen Dollars, send a Plow to any Railroad station in the State and pay the freight. Address,

SYRACUSE CHILLED PLOW CO.

Poetical.

A MOTHER'S CRADLE-SONG.

Sleep my baby, while I sing
Of the loving thoughts that start
Like a lark that spreads its wing,
From the warm nest of my heart.
Oh, my baby, every thought
In the heart thou hearest beat
Isof thee, and all are fraught
With a love no words repeat!
Sleep, my baby—dream and rest.

Sleep, my baby, while I pray
That the years that come and go
May not lead the feet astray
That thy mother loveth so,
Sweet and peaceful be thy rest
In the cradle of her love;
Yard art safe on a Father's breast
While she keepeth watch above.
Sleep, my baby—dream and rest.

Sleep, my darling! Mother-love
Sets its seal upon thy brow.
And the lids that droop above
Her twin-blossoms, hidden now.
And the seal, my little one,
Is a long and tender kiss,
May it cling till life is done.
And thou know'st what heaven is!
Sleep, my baby—dream and rest.

Select Story.

SEVENTY-FIVE MILES AN HOUR.

I had spent a night in a stage, a day in a saddle, a night in a sleeping car, half a day doing business, half a day in bed, and was, after supper, enjoying a cigar and a newspaper in the reading room of the Redwood House, Fayette, Ind. The newspaper was uninteresting, or else I was rather sleepy—I guess it was a little of both—so that I soon neglected it, to watch the fantastic curling of the smoke from my fine flavored cigar. I didn't feel much like talking, and felt still less like reading; but I did feel as if I would like exceedingly well to hear a good story.

I had barely come to this conclusion and commenced wishing for some one of my acquaintances to amuse me till the time was up for the train which was to take me to Indianapolis, when I recognized in the person who sat next to me, a fellow-traveler in the sleeping car of the night before.

He, too, had laid aside his paper, and was apparently, like me, watching the smoke of his cigar, and wishing for absent friends to keep him company.

He was a very agreeable looking little man, with a clear, gray eye, light hair, sandy whiskers and smiling mouth. Indeed, he had much the appearance of a man that I would like to hear tell a story, that I thought Dame Fortune had smiled upon me, when he recognized me with a genial 'How d'ye do, stranger?'

I returned his salutation, and asked him some commonplace questions about how he had enjoyed the ride we had together.

He said something in reply about the running being too fast for the poor track; and from this the conversation ran upon fast traveling in general for some time. At last I remarked that sixty miles an hour was the most speedy traveling that I had ever done. Whereupon my friend informed me, with a pleasant, but knowing smile, that he had traveled considerable faster than that, and, in fact, faster than he had ever heard of, besides. Of course I was anxious to know where, how, and when he had done it; and, after a modest assurance that he feared his tale would not be interesting, my friend relieved my anxiety by relating the following story:

'I am a railroad engineer. Away along in fifty-seven, during the great panic, I was running on the F. & C. R. R. The railroad companies were going under in all directions. Every day we heard of new failures; and quite often in a quarter where we least expected it. Our road was generally looked upon as one of the most substantial in the nation; nobody seemed to have any fears that it would fail to survive the general smash up. But yet I did not fully share in the general confidence. Wages were cut down, arrearages collected, and a great many other little matters seemed to me that the road had got into rather deeper water than was agreeable all around. Among other things the master mechanic had told me in the spring that the company had ordered four first quality engines for the fall passenger business. The road was put in the very best condition, and other preparations were made to cut down the time and run the trains through quicker than was ever known before, when the new engines should come. Well, there was but one of the engines came.

'I said there was but one engine came; but she was, in my opinion, altogether the best ever turned out of the Taunton works: and that is saying as much as can be said in praise of any engine. She was put in my charge immediately, with the understanding that she was mine.

'It was Saturday when she came out of the shop, and I was to take a special train up to Y——. The train was to carry up the president and several of the officers of the road to meet some officers of another road, which crossed ours there, and arrange some important business with them.

'I had no trouble at all in making my forty miles an hour going out. The engine handled herself most beatifully. We were just holding up at Y——, when Aldrich, the treasurer, who had come out on the platform to put the brake on, slipped and fell. As we were still under good headway he was very much injured and was carried off to the hotel insensible.

'According to the president's directions I switched off my train, turned my engine and stood ready to start back to C—— at a moment's notice.

'Aldrich's presence was of so much importance that the business could not be transacted without him; so all those I had brought out, except the president and Aldrich went back to C—— on the 3 o'clock express train. This was the last regular train which was to pass over the road till next Monday.

'Early in the evening I left the machine in charge of my fireman and went over to an eating house to see if I could not spend the time more pleasantly than on my engine. The hours dragged themselves away slowly. I was playing a game of dominoes with the station agent, when in came Roberts, the president, in a state of great excitement.

'"Harry," said he to me, "I want you to put me down in C—— at 12 o'clock!'

'As is was nearly 11 o'clock then, and the distance was seventy-five miles, I thought he was joking at first; but when we got outside the door, he caught me by the arm, and hurried me along so fast that I saw he was in earnest.

'"Harry," said he' "If you don't set me down in C—— at 12 o'clock, I am a ruined man, and this road is a ruined road. Aldrich is dead; but he told me before he died, that he had embezzled from time to time five hundred thousand of our money; and his clerk is to start with it on the 12 o'clock boat from C—— for Canada. If we don't have that money on Monday morning, to make some payments with, the road goes into other hands; and if you put me down in C—— at the right time, so that I save the money, you shall have five thousand dollars. Understand it, Harry? Five thousand dollars!'

'Of course I understood it. I saw now the reason why the wages had been cut down; I understood it all, and my blood boiled. I felt that I would save the road if I lived, and told Roberts so.

'"See that you do it, Harry!" he replied, as he climbed up on the steps of the coach which was coupled to my engine.

'I sprang up into the footboard, got up the switch tender to help my fireman, and opened the throttle and just as she commenced moving looked at my watch—it was just 11 o'clock, so that I had one hour to make my seventy-five miles in.

'From Y—— to C—— there was few curves on the road; but there were several heavy grades: I was perfectly acquainted with every rod of it; so that I knew exactly what I had to encounter; and when I saw how the engine moved I felt very little fear for the result.

'The road for the first mile was an air line, and so smooth that my engine flew along with scarcely a perceptible jar. I was so busy posting myself up as to the amount of wood and water aboard, etc., that we danced by the first station almost before I was aware of it, having been five minutes out, and having five miles accomplished.

'"You are losing time!" yelled a voice from the coach. I looked around, and there stood Roberts with his watch in his hand.

'I knew very well that we would have to increase our speed by some means, if we carried out our plans of reaching C—— by midnight, and looked anxiously around to see what I could do to accomplish that purpose. She was blowing off steam fiercely at one hundred and ten pounds; so I turned down the valve to two hundred, for I knew we should need it all to make some of the heavy grades which lay between us and C——.

'It was three miles to the next station. With the exception of a few curves the track was as good as the last. As we darted around what commonly seemed to be a rather long curve, at the station, but which was, at our high speed, short enough, I looked at my watch, and we had done it in two minutes and a half.

'Gaining, I shouted back to Robets, who was yet standing on the platform of the coach.

'"Look out for the heavy grades," he replied, and went inside the car.

'The next six miles rose gradually from a level the first, to ten and a half grade the last, which lay between us and the next station. My fireman kept her full, and now she began to get hot. The furnace door was red, and the steam raised continually, so that she kept her speed, and passed the station like a streak of light in five minutes.

'Now came nine miles like the last; over which she kept pace with her time and passed the station in seven and a half minutes.

'Here, for ten miles, we had twenty-feet grade to encounter; but the worst of it all was at this place we would be obliged to stop for wood. I was just going to speak to Roberts about it, when I looked around and saw him filling the tender from the coach with wood which had been placed there before starting, while he was gone after me.

'I believe we would have made this ten miles with the same speed as before, but through the carelessness of the fireman the fountain valve on the left-hand side engine got opened, and the water rose in the boiler so fast as to run the steam down to 100 pounds before I discovered where the difficulty was.

'At first Roberts didn't appear to notice the decrease of the speed, and kept working at the wood as if for dear life. But presently he looked up, and, seeing that the speed had decreased he shouted: "Harry, we are stopping!" and then coming over to where I was, he said: "Why, here we have been ten minutes on the last ten miles, and I believe we will come to a dead stand if something is not done. The speed is continually slacking! What is the matter?'

'I explained the cause. He was apparently satisfied with my explanation, and, after having tied down the safety valve, he climed back over the tender, exhorting me to put her through, for God's sake, or we were all beggars to gether!'

'Just then we passed the next station, having taken nine minuts for eight miles. We were now more than half over the road, but we had lost nearly ten minutes time, and had left only twenty-seven minutes to do thirty-four miles in.

'I had shut the water off from both my pumps, a little distance back, when I discovered what was the matter, and she was now making steam finely down a grade. From less than one hundred, with which we started over that ten mile stretch, she had two hundred pounds before we finished it; and, as the gauge indicated no higher than that the valve was tied down, I could not tell how much over two hundred pounds she carried, but she certainly carried none the less the rest of the journey. And well might she carry such an enormous head of steam, for, after passing over that ten miles in eight minutes, there lay ten miles of five-feet up grade, and fourteen miles of twenty-feet to the mile depression between us and C——, and it was now 11:47 o'clock.

'Now the engine was hot in earnest. The furnace door, smoke arch, and chimney, all were red; while she seemed to fly onward as if the very evil one himself operated the machinery.

'Six minutes carried us over that ten miles; and we darted by the last station that had lain between us and C——. Now we had fourteen miles to go, and my time showed 11:53 o'clock.

'If I live,' said I to myself, 'I will make it.' And we plunged down that twenty foot grade with all steam on. Persons who saw the train on that wild run said that it was so soon after they heard the first sound of her approach when the strange object, which looked as if it was a flame of fire, darted by, and then the sound of its travelling died away in the distance, that they could hardly convince themselves that they had really seen anything. It seemed more like the creature of a wild dream than a sober reality.

'And now let me tell you no engine ever beat the time we made on those fourteen miles. Those great wheels seven feet in diameter, spun around so swift that you couldn't begin to count the revolutions. The engine barely seemed to touch the track as she flew along; and although the track was as true as it was possible for it to be she swayed fearfully and sometimes made such prodigious jolts that it required considerable skill for one to keep his feet. No engine could hold together if crowded to a greater speed.

'Well, just as I came to a standstill in the depot at C—— the big clock boomed out 12 and the steamboat was getting her steam on. Roberts got on board in time and nothing to spare.

'And he saved the money, did he?' I asked when I saw that my friend had finished his story.

'Yes; he found it hid away in some old boxes as Aldrich had directed him.'

'If you are a passenger for G——,' said a waiter, 'the bus is ready.'

So I thanked my friend for his story and bade him 'good bye.'

That man who is named for the Presidency should above all be clean handed and untarnished, and if he is not such, it is idle for the party which supports him to complain because the dark spots in his record are not by common consent concealed. Every accusation brought against Gen. Garfield has facts furnished by the republican party itself, to sustain it, and it is simply childishness for that party to stand off now and bewail the degeneracy of the times as manifested in the tendency of the Democrats to "fling mud." Several of the more radical organs endeavored to off-set these charges against Garfield by furious onslaughts upon Hancock which were "mud flinging" simple and pure, but being such soon fell through, leaving the clear record of the brilliant soldier untarnished. The republicans did not foresee events when they exposed Garfield's criminality in the Credit Mobilier business, the pavement contracts, the salary grab steal, etc., and now they must be willing to patiently undergo the avalanche they unwittingly pulled down upon their heads.—Jeffersonian.

Dr. Unger's Cure for Drunkenness.

The claims of Dr. Unger for a remedy for curing intemperance would seem to be justified, if we may rely upon as good authority as the Chicago Tribune for the evidence. Mr. Joseph Medill, the editor, is said to be a strong endorser of the new remedy, and from the editorial commendations of it in the columns of the Tribune we conclude the remedy has produced some benefit to the community already. It is claimed that the doctor has cured 28,000 persons of the worst form of intemperance with it, and that this is the first remedy ever discovered that kills the disease and the inclination to drink at one and the same time.

Remedy.—Take one pound of best, fresh, quill red Peruvian bark, powder it, and soak it in one pint of diluted alcohol. Afterwards strain and evaporate it down to half a pint. Directions for its use: Dose—a teaspoonful every three hours the first and second day, and occasionally moisten the tongue between the doses. It acts like quinine, and the patient can tell by a headache if he is getting too much. The third day take as previous, but reduce the dose to one-half teaspoonful. Afterward reduce the dose to fifteen drops, and then down to ten, and then down to five drops. To make a cure, it takes from five to fifteen days, and in extreme cases thirty days. Seven days are about the average in which a cure can be effected.

A Tramp's Revenge.

A few days ago one of the seediest sort of tramps, seemingly about fifty years old, attached to a free lunch saloon on Monroe avenue and soon fell perfectly at home. When ordered out he went out, but the trouble was he wouldn't stay out. As a last resort he was kicked out but in an hour he came back and seemed so humble and forgiving that the proprietor didn't like to give him any more cowhide. After a day or two a different plan was tried. The wag had several times referred to a pain in his chest, and the bar keeper mixed him up a cure. In ten minutes after drinking it he was excitedly informed that he had been given a large dose of morphine by mistake. A party was at hand to play doctor, and it was decided that the tramp must walk until he overcame the influence of the drug. One and another took turns with him until he had put in about four hours in the back yard, and he was then told to walk into the country at least to make his cure sure. He took the case very coolly, never protesting a word, and as he started for the green fields it was supposed that the saloon had seen the last of him. Nevertheless he returned in about four hours, lame in the left leg, covered with dust and apparently almost exhausted. He said he walked in vain. Finding that death was determined to claim him, he had returned to die with his friends. Before they could protest he fell to the floor, breaking the back of a chair and upsetting a table, and after a few kicks he was dead. A pint of good brandy was wasted in rubbing him the saloon closed for an hour in the face of a big business and an undertaker and coroner called before the old chap let any one know that he wasn't dead. He came to in some sort of fit which required a great deal of kicking, and he took good care that every kick counted on something. When restored sufficiently to sit up he was given nearly a half pint of wine, and as his strength increased he got away with enough luncheon for four men. It was then deemed good policy to hand him half a dollar and turn him out upon the world. Just how much profit the saloon keeper made in playing the morphine trick is what will puzzle him for a month.—Detroit Free Press.

Plea of Carl Schurz.

In his elaborate plea at Indianapolis for stay of judgment against the Republican party Carl Schurz urged that the election of Gen. Hancock would cause so violent a change in official places as to shake the machinery of government itself. He candidly admitted that this was the only "crisis"—the removal of the office holders—that caused him any alarm. As a member of the office holding class Secretary Schurz was making a not very indirect appeal in his own behalf. He was speaking for his own class. On the other hand, some of the active Republican workers who are "out in the cold" pretend to have assurances from Garfield that there will be an entirely "new deal." But in case of election Garfield could not make good his assurances to outsiders except in the rare cases of death or resignation. Secretary M'Pherson sends out this blackmailing circular to all the officials of the government with the significant admonition that they had the deepest interest in preventing the restoration of the Democratic party to power. They pay in order to keep their places and with the understanding that they would not be disturbed in case of the election of General Garfield. If removals were made in the change of Republican administration the office-holding class would have little interest in making contributions to keep their party in power. The chief cause of the hostility to Hayes in the Republican party arises from the fact that he has not been able to make room to accommodate the clamoring outsiders. Garfield would be in the same dilemma.

According to the argument of Carl Schurz the people must submit to the establishment of an office-holding aristocracy in their government. There must be no change of administration lest by removals from office too great a shock would be given to the governmental machine. The alarm of Carl Schurz is unduly excited on this subject. Rotation in office has always been a favorite and a salutary doctrine of the people.

In their state constitutions they have made short terms in all offices, except the judiciary, from governor down to town-constable. This policy of rotation in office of short terms has grown out of popular repugnance in an office holding class, and out of the experience that long continued possession of power leads to corruption and abuses. It is a policy that can be applied as usefully to the general government as to the local governments of the people.

The republican party is no exception to the rule that everywhere and at all times a long lease of power breeds corruption and misrule in the state. In his compulsory abandonment of his civil service policy to the exigencies of party Mr. Hayes has demonstrated that reform can come only through a change of administration. But Carl Schurz pleads that a change will produce too violent a shock to the body politic. He need not be disturbed. A change will give a fresh impulse to the political development of the country. There will not be the slightest untoward disturbance in the machinery of government. Let the office holders be shaken up and the Tite Barnacles scraped from the bottom of the ship of state once in twenty years. Against the demand and the imperious necessity for a change the only response of the republican organs and orators is to flap the bloody shirt in the faces of the people and to plead that the country is indebted to the republican party (and its office holders) for its abundant wheat crops and its prodigious growth in wealth and population.—Patriot.

DELEGATE TICKETS.

The tickets for the Delegate election tomorrow have been printed at this office and sent to each election district. They have been given only to responsible persons, with the request that they be left at the election house, and not opened until Saturday morning.

INSTRUCTIONS.

For Congress and State Senator strike out all the names but the one for whom you wish to instruct. For representative, strike out all but two. As there is but one candidate for district attorney, of course you will let that stand. Write in the names of delegates at the top of the tickets, and the name of one person for standing committee at the bottom. Each voter is entitled to as many votes as there are delegates to be elected, and may cast them all for one delegate, or may divide them among the delegates as they see fit. In case of a tie between delegates it shall be decided by drawing lots.

In another column we publish an article giving reasons why Capt. Brockway should be nominated for Congress. This article is inserted simply as a paid advertisement, and with the distinct understanding that we do not in any way endorse it editorially. It is the policy of this paper not to take up the cudgel in favor of any particular candidate prior to the nomination, but we cannot refuse to permit any democrat to advocate his own claims through this paper so long as he does not request us to adopt his words as ours.

So far as our personal preferences go we desire, first, to have a bona fide Columbia county man nominated. If this cannot be done we think it only right to carry out the established rule and return Mr. Klotz to Congress.

The bloody shirt still waves in the South but the shoe is now on the other foot. Hardly a day passes that the papers do not contain accounts of outrages committed by Southern negroes upon white people. A respectable physician while riding along the road was shot down by a colored man who apparently had no motive for the deed. Another negro was lynched in Maryland for outraging a white lady. And yet the republican organs would have us believe that the only reason why the South is Democratic is because the poor negroes are bulldozed. Occurrences in the South are magnified and exaggerated, while the very same things happen every day in the north without notice. What a beautiful Ku Klux story the Vanliew murder would have made if it had happened below the Mason & Dixon line. But who in this county ever suspected that this crime had any political significance? Men on trial and acquitted in the south before republican judges, and the Northern press howls about rebel juries which override the laws and set criminals free upon society. Men are tried and convicted of inciting to riot, of bribery in Pennsylvania, and before the jury can render a verdict or the prison doors can close upon them a republican Governor prepares a previous pardon, on a republican board of pardons sets them free. That is the difference between the republican North and the Democratic South. Republicans may commit the crime of theft, mis conduct in office, perjury, or any other high crime, they may disregard the constitution and the laws, and the more they do it the better partisans they are.

Party offices and honors are lavished upon them, and they are held up as noble examples of republican statesman. Rebel brigadiers who signify their willingness to be converted to republicanism for a consideration are received with open arms, and rewarded with offices, as were Longstreet, Mosby and other rebel leaders. But let a Wade Hampton be sent to the Senate Chamber, and the cry of "treason" "treason" comes from the throats of a thousand organ grinders. The republican platform so far as the south is concerned is just this; "Vote our ticket, help keep us in office and everything you ask for shall be granted you. But so long as you stick to the democracy, just so long you are rebels, just so long shall you be down trodden, your rights denied you, your ballot boxes guarded by our bayonets. You shall and must be a part of this union, but you shall not have one word to say about how the union shall be governed. Repent and we will give you all the spoils of office there are left after we get what we want. Stick to your present allegiance, and we will keep our heels on your necks until the majority is so great against us that we dare no longer oppress you." That day is fast approaching.

Hon. William D. Kelly claims to be a tariff man, and refused to vote for Mr. Garfield for Speaker of the House, because he was a Free Trader. Actions speaks louder than words, and Mr. Kelly can't make any sane man believe his talk. Is he honest in what he says, or was he honest in what he did? Come William, for once face the music.

HANCOCK'S LETTER.

A BRIEF BUT POINTED ACCEPTANCE.

THE UNION UNDER THE CONSTITUTION—FRAUD MUST NOT SUBVERT POPULAR RIGHTS—THE BAYONET NOT A FIT INSTRUMENT FOR COLLECTING VOTES—THE BLESSINGS OF PERFECT PEACE.

GOVERNOR'S ISLAND,
NEW YORK CITY, July 29, 1880

GENTLEMEN: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of July 18, 1880, apprising me formally of my nomination to the office of President of the United States by the National Democratic convention lately assembled in Cincinnati. I accept the nomination with grateful appreciation of the confidence reposed in me.

The principles enunciated by the convention are those I have cherished in the past and shall endeavor to maintain in the future. The thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth, amendments to the Constitution of the United States, embodying the results of the war for the Union, are inviolable. If called to the Presidency I should deem it my duty to resist with all my power any attempt to impair or evade the full force and effect of the Constitution, which, in every article, section and amendment, is the supreme law of the land.

THE UNION UNDER THE CONSTITUTION.

The Constitution forms a basis of the Government of the United States. The powers granted by it to the legislative, executive and judicial departments define and limit the authority of the general government. Powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, belong to the States respectively or to the people. The general and State governments, each acting in its own sphere without trenching upon the lawful jurisdiction of the other, constitute the Union. This Union, comprising a general government with general power and State governments with State powers for purposes local to the States, is a polity the foundations of which were laid in the profoundest wisdom. This is the Union our fathers made, and which has been so respected abroad and so beneficent at home. Tried by blood and fire it stands to-day a model form of free popular government, a political system which, rightly administered, has been and will continue to be the admiration of the world. May we not say, nearly in the words of Washington, the unity of government which constitutes us one people is justly dear to us? It is the main pillar in the edifice of our real independency, the support of our peace, safety and prosperity and of that liberty we so highly prize and intend at very hazard to preserve.

FRAUD MUST NOT SUBVERT POPULAR RIGHTS.

But no form of Government, however carefully devised, no principals, however sound, will protect the rights of the people unless the administration is faithful and efficent. It is a vital principle in our system that neither fraud nor force must be allowed to subvert the rights of the people. When fraud, violence or incompotence controls, the noblest constitutions and wisest laws are useless. The bayonet is not a fit instrument for collecting the votes of freemen. It is only by a full vote, free ballot and fair count that the people can rule in fact as required by the theory of the government. Take the foundation away and the whole structure falls.

PUBLIC OFFICE A TRUST.

Public office a trust, not a bounty bestowed upon the holder. No competent in no dishonest persons should ever be entrusted with it, or, if appointed, they should be promptly rejected. The basis of substantial, practical civil service reform must first be established by the people in filling the elective offices. If they fix a high standard of qualifications for office and sternly reject the corrupt and incompetent, the result will be decisive in governing the action of the servants whom they entrust with appointing power.

LET US HAVE PEACE.

The war for the Union was successfully closed more than fifteen years ago. All classes of our people must share alike in the blessings of the Union and are equally concerned in its perpetuity and in the proper administration of public affairs. We are in a state of protound peace. Henceforth let it be our purpose to cultivate sentiments of friendship and not of animosity among our fellow-citizens. Our material interests, varied and progressive, demand our united and constant efforts. A sedulous and scrupulous care of public credit, together with a wise and economical management of our governmental expenditures, should be maintained, in order that labor may be lightly burdened and that all persons may be protected in their rights to the fruits of their own industry.

THE WAY TO PROSPERITY.

The time has come to enjoy the substantial benefits of reconciliation. As one people we have common interests. Let us encourage the harmony and generous rivalry among our own industries which will revive our languishing merchant marine, extend our commerece with foreign nations, assist our merchants, manufacturers and producers to develop our vast natural resources and increase the prosperity and happiness of our people.

If elected I shall, with the Divine favor labor with what ability I possess to discharge my duties with fidelity according to my convictions, and shall take care to defend and protect the Union and to see that the laws be faithfully and equally executed in all parts of the country alike. I will assume the responsibility fully sensible of the fact that to administer rightly the functions of government is to discharge the most sacred duty that can devolve upon an American citizen.

I am, very respectfully, yours,
WINFIELD S. HANCOCK,

To the Honorable John W. Stevenson, President of the Convention; Honorable John P. Stockton, Chairman, and others of the Committee of the National Democratic Convention.

ENGLISH'S ACCEPTANCE.

WHY THE REPUBLICAN PARTY SHOULD GIVE WAY TO THE DEMOCRATS

INDIANAPOLIS, July 30.—Hon. William H. English transmitted the following letter of acceptance of his nomination as candidate for Vice President to the committee of notification to-day:

Indianapolis, Ind., July 30, 1880.

To Hon. John W. Stevenson, President of the Convention; Hon. John P. Stockton, Chairman, and other members of the Committee of Notification:

GENTLEMEN: I have now the honor to reply to your letter of 13th instant, informing me that I was unanimously nominated for the office of Vice President of the United States by the late Democratic National Convention which assembled at Cincinnati. As foreshadowed in the verbal remarks made be me at the time of the delivery of your letter, I have now to say that I accept the high trust with a realizing sense of its responsibility, and am profoundly greatful for the honor conferred. I accept the nomination upon the platform of principles adopted by the Convention, which I cordially approve, and I accept it quite as much because of my faith in the wisdom and patriotism of the great statesman and soldier nominated on the same ticket for President of the United States. His eminent services to his country; his fidelity to the Constitution, the Union and the laws; his clear perception of the correct principles of government as taught by Jefferson; his scrupulous care to keep the military in strict subordination to the civil authorities; his high regard for civil liberty, personal rights and the right of property; his acknowledged ability in civil as well as military affairs and his pure and blameless life, all point to him as a man worthy of the confidence of the people. Not only a brave soldier, a great commander, a wise statesman and a true patriot, but a prudent, painstaking, practical man of unquestioned honesty, trusted often with important public duties, faithful to every trust in the full meridian of ripe and vigorous manhood, he is, in my judgment, eminently fitted for the highest office on earth—the President of the United States.

A CHANGE DEMANDED.

Not only is he the right man for the place but the time has come when the best interests of the country require that the party which has monopolized the executive department of the General Government for the last twenty years should be retired. The continuance of that party in power four years longer would not be beneficial to the public nor in accordance with the spirit of republican institutions. Laws of entail have not been favored in our system of government. The perpetuation of property or place in one family or set of men has never been encouraged in this country, and the great and good men who formed our republican government and its traditions wisely limited the tenure of office and in many ways showed their disproval of long leases of power. Twenty years of continuous power is long enough, and has already led to irregularities and corruptions which are not likely to be properly exposed under the same party that perpetrated them.

FRAUD MUST NOT BE CONDONED.

Besides it should not be forgotten that the four last years of power held by that party were procured by discreditable means and held in defiance of the wishes of a majority of the people. It was a grevious wrong to every voter and to our system of self-government which should never be forgotten nor forgiven. Many of the men now in office were put there because of corrupt partisan services in thus defeating the fairly and legally expressed will of the majority, and the hypocrisy of the professions of that party in favor of civil service reform was shown by placing such men in office and turning the whole brood of Federal office holders loose to influence the elections. The money of the people taken out of the public Treasury by these men for services often poorly performed or not performed at all is being used in vast sums, with the knowledge and presumed sanction of the administration, to control the elections, and even the members of the cabinet are strolling about the country making partisan speeches instead of being in their departments at Washington discharging the public duties for which they are paid by the people. But all their cleverness and ability a discriminating public will no doubt read between the lines of their speeches that their paramount hope and aim is to keep themselves or their satellites four years longer in office. That perpetuating the power of chronic Federal office holders four years longer will not benefit the millions of men and women who hold no office but earn their daily bread by honest industry, is what the same discerning public will no doubt fully understand, as they will, also, that it is because of their own industry and economy and God's bountiful harvests that the country is comparatively prosperous, and not because of anything done by these Federal office holders. The country is comparatively prosperous, not because of them, but in spite of them.

THE PEOPLE AND THE OFFICE-HOLDERS.

The contest is, in fact, between the people, endeavoring to regain the political power which rightfully belongs to them, and to restore the pure, simple, economical, constitutional government of our fathers, on the one side, and a hundred thousand Federal office-holders and their backers, pampered with place and power and determined to retain them at all hazards, on the other. Hence the constant assumption of new and dangerous powers by general government under the rule of the Republican party. The efforts to build up what they call a strong government; the interference with home rule and with the administration of justice in the courts of the several States; the interference with the elections through the medium of paid partisan office-holders interested in keeping their party in power and caring more for that than fairness in the elections; in fact, the constant encroachments which have been made by that party upon the clearly reserved rights of the people and the States will, if not checked, subvert the liberties of the people and the government of limited powers created by the fathers and end in a great consolidated central government, strong indeed for evil and the overthrow of republican institutions. The wise men who framed our Constitution knew the evils of a strong government and the long continuance of political power in the same hands. They knew there was a tendency in this direction in all governments and consequent danger to republican institutions from that cause, and took pains to guard against it. The machinery of a strong centralized general government can be used to perpetuate the same set of men in power from term to term until it ceases to be a republic or is such only in name, and the tendency of the party now in power in that direction, as shown in various ways besides the willingness recently manifested by a large number of that party to elect a President an unlimited number of terms, is quite apparent and must satisfy thinking people that the time has come when it will be safest and best for that party to be retired.

IN FAVOR OF THE CONSTITUTION.

But in resisting the encroachments of the General Government upon the reserved rights of the people and the States, I wish to be distinctly understood as favoring the proper exercise by the General Government of the powers rightfully belonging to it and under the Constitution. Encroachments upon the constitutional rights of the General Government, or interference with the proper exercise of its powers, must be carefully avoided. The union of the States under the Constitution must be maintained, and it is well known that this has always been the position of both the candidates on the Democratic Presidential ticket. It is acquiesced in everywhere now, and finally and forever settled as one of the results of war. It is certain beyond all question that the legitimate results of the war for the Union will not be overthrown or impaired should the Democratic ticket be elected.

WHAT THE DEMOCRATS WILL DO.

In that event proper protection will be given in every legitimate way to every citizen, native or adopted, in every section of the republic, in the enjoyment of all the rights guranteed by the Constitution and its amendments. A sound currency of honest money, of a value and purchasing power corresponding substantially with the standard recognized by the commercial world and and consisting of gold and silver and paper convertible into coin, will be maintained. The labor and manufacturing, commercial and business interests of the country will be favored and encouraged in every legitimate way. The toiling millions of our own people will be protected from the destructive competition of the Chinese, and to that end their immigration to our shores will be properly restricted.

The public credit will be scrupulously maintained and strengthened by rigid economy in public expenditures and the liberties of the people and the property of the people will be protected by a government of law and order, administered strictly in the interests of all the people, and not of corporations and privileged classes.

I do not doubt the discriminating justice of the people and their capacity of intelligent self government, and therefore do not doubt the success of the Democratic ticket. Its success would bury, beyond resurrection, the sectional jealousies and hatreds which have so long been the chief stock in trade of pestiferous demagogues, and in no other way can this be so effectually accomplished. It would restore harmony and good feeling between all the sections and make us in fact as well as in name, one people.

The only rivalry then would be in the race for the development of material prosperity, the elevation of labor, the enlargement of human rights, the promotion of education, morality, religion, liberty, order and all that would tend to make us the foremost nation of the earth in the grand march of human progress.

I am, with great respect, very truly yours,
WILLIAM H. ENGLISH.

DELEGATE ELECTION SATURDAY AUGUST 7. LET EVERY DEMOCRAT ATTEND.

It has been the custom in this county to permit candidates for Congress and State Senate to name their own conferees. For reasons that have become manifest in recent years, this practice ought to be changed. Congressional and Senatorial conferees are chosen by the convention and are supposed to be the representatives of the party. They are sent to the conference for the purpose of using all honorable means to secure the nomination of the man for whom they are instructed, and if this cannot be accomplished to nominate some other person who will make a strong run. By permitting the candidate to name his own men the convention turns over to him the privilege of appointing those who will do nothing except what he directs, which often leads to protracted sessions, and makes bad feeling. The coming convention should select its representatives to conference, and they should be men who will not only do all in their power to secure Columbia County's choice, but who will also act upon their own judgment without feeling compelled to obey the direction of the home candidate, when they see that his chances are gone. The conferees are the agents of the whole party, and not simply of the candidates, and they should therefore feel at liberty to act for the best interests of the party.

MR. GARFIELD VOTED IN CONGRESS TO REDUCE THE DUTY ON FOREIGN PIG IRON FROM $9.00 TO $6.50 PER TON.

Of course the manufacturers of pig iron are very happy over the nomination of Mr. Garfield. That is the "Ohio idee" of a tariff and protection. There has been enough of that. Let us come back to home rule, and try an old Pennsylvanian.

How will the following do for a—— reason, why Garfield should be elected President.

D. Magner in his "New System of Educating Horses" page 255 says: When the eloquent preacher and Senator from Ohio Mr. Garfield attended one of my exhibitions, so great was his pleasure while witnessing the great performance of Tommy's that he rolled, clapped his hands, and shouted with delight.

CANDIDATES.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

NOTICE.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Bloomsburg Mutual Saving Fund Association will be held at the office of J. J. Samuel Shaffer, Sr., an old and respected citizen of Bloom township, died at an early hour on Friday morning last.

A rousing Democratic meeting was held at Evansville on last Friday evening. Speeches were made by Hervey E Smith, Esq., J. M. C. Knack, Esq., and Hon. T. J. Vandersloe. A Hancock and English club was formed, and the following officers elected: A. B. Crapp, President; Stephen Dietterick and Levi Shaffer Vice Presidents; Harry Evans, Secretary, and H. L. Adams, Treasurer. A number of voters, formerly of the Republican and of the Greenback parties, enrolled their names.

THE WINONA FESTIVAL.

Extensive preparations were made for a good time at the festival of the Winona Fire company held last Friday and Saturday evenings, and the boys were not disappointed in the results of their labor. Neither Evans' Hall, nor any other hall in town was ever so elaborately decorated. Flags, festoons, banners, pictures and fire trophies, all combined to produce a charming effect. The tables were attractive, but not so much so as the young ladies who waited on them. They all looked their prettiest and did their best to swell the receipts, and for their services they have the thanks of the company. At the flower stand alone Miss May Kuhn and Miss Annie Miller took in over twelve dollars. Others did equally as well, but we cannot attempt to tell what each one did.

There were a number of features here not often seen at such places. A soda fountain kept two men constantly employed in preparing cooling beverages. The grab bag was a source of considerable amusement to the audience and profit to the company. There were all sorts of draws and lotteries, several handsome prizes being disposed of in that manner. There was a clock, celuloid toilet cases, and elegant jewelry, from five to twenty-five cents a draw.

The Bloomsburg band and Metherell's Orchestra furnished excellent music both evenings and on Saturday night the Avis band attended, with their handsome new uniforms. They not only look well, but they play well too.

The crowd on Saturday was immense, the receipts at the door showing an attendance of about 600 people. The atmosphere in the hall was just right to make a large demand for ice cream, of which about 130 quarts were sold. A number of the Friendship and Rescue members showed their good will by attending and patronizing the festival liberally. At the close of the last evening, R. Harris, of the Rescue kindly lent his services as auctioneer and run off everything that was left at fair prices. Both nights perfect order was maintained. On Saturday night several intoxicated men got into the hall, but on being quietly requested to leave, they all did so but one. He was cautioned to depart, but showed a quarrelsome disposition, whereupon he was at once ejected without any ceremony. It did not take long for rowdies to find they were out of place.

The total receipts were about $253; expenses amounted to $115.

BERWICK LETTER.

EDS. COLUMBIAN:

A much needed improvement is being made in our town reservoir, that of cleaning it and increasing its elevation.

Rev. Williamson, a former teacher of town, and wife, are spending several weeks with us. The Reverend's recreation consists of hunting and fishing, though the wood cock are very scarce and the bass are not very active. Few of the many fisherman return with trophies that they feel proud of, occasionally some one returns with a "three-pounder" and a "yarn" to suit.

Messrs. B. F. Crispin and F. R. Jackson are pleased with the knowledge that their furnace at Laurelton is in operation and doing very good work.

Travelers should always have a small bottle of Sines' Dysentery Compound for immediate relief from any bowel complaints, guaranteed to tone up the stomach at once to a healthy condition. aug 6-1m

The union of the Democrats and Greenbackers of Maine is now complete, and they go into the campaign with a united front to the enemy. The republicans will have their hands full to carry the State in September.

Mothers, don't fail to have Sine's Dysentery Compound on hand, for the relief of your little baby when attacked with any bowel complaint. It contains no morphine nor opium, yet its soothing effect will give the little sufferer so much relief, that he will at once fall into a gentle sleep, and give his mother an opportunity to rest, as well as every provoked bachelor of the house. aug 6-1m

DELEGATE ELECTION SATURDAY AUGUST 7. LET EVERY DEMOCRAT ATTEND.

Since the English gentlemen as well as the Messrs. Lorillard, James Gordon Bennett, &c., have found so much virtue in Robert's Horse Powders, and have used it in such quantities; all persons who are alive to their interests give it to their horses, whether runners, trotters or farm horses. It has a wonderful effect. aug6lm

The Hancock and English club of Catawissa is now thoroughly organized. Dr. Robbins is President, and W. L. Eyerly, Esq., Secretary. C. B Brockway and H. E. Smith addressed the club last Saturday evening.

Robert's Horse Powders were formerly used amongst the runners and other valuable horses but now since the price has been reduced to 25 cents per package, all can afford to use them. aug6 1m

DELEGATE ELECTION SATURDAY AUGUST 7. LET EVERY DEMOCRAT ATTEND.

We were greatly amused some days since, by seeing one of our venerable citizens, who had been bowed down with Rheumatism, throw away his crutches, and declare himself just as young as he used to be, and now he is recommending Robert's Embrocation to every old lady in town. Great liniment that. aug 6-1m Klotz and Megargell as Bolters.

DEMOCRATS, READ AND REFLECT.

In the Congressional contest of 1876, Collins was renominated by the conferees of Luzerne, Pike, Monroe and Monroe. Klotz would not bolt. For that purpose he came to Bloomsburg and by appointment here met Megargell and others. He offered to run himself, if the COLUMBIAN and others would support him. This was refused under the circumstances. In proof I give extracts from his letters, the originals of which are in my possession.

My Dear Friends: When I Reach Home I found Mr Broadhead Leonard our chairman Judge Packer half Dozen most Prominent county officials and heads of Party &c all here attending court Then Taylor Lentz Steadman &c the conferees all wishing to the result I explained all and show them How you Mr Buckalew and Others felt and that old Noble "Columbia" at Least would be a unit in action On this subject and that we had agreed to meet Monday or Tuesday &c All was Happy and all were agreed Nay determined At 5 o'clock p. m. it came out that Lynn had announced that he would Hoist Collins to the Mast of his Paper and say that he was regularly nominated &c This so exasperated our People that 12 to 15 of the very head men went to see him and among Others Judge Packer saying it was a matter of Honor as I had been sent to your county &c But Mr. after Putting us off sent for Craig and Craig alone decided That Collins was the Man and Lynn said so in his paper Oh! My Dear Sir this morning Jonn Taylor and 3 or 4 more go in to stop their Paper and declare we shall and must Have a new organ and the chairman declares he shall not Print the tickets &c and there is a general Row We are acting as if we had no man yet for the district and will so stand with Monroe and Columbia I Have written them in full The republicans here Mr Lilly &c think that Waller (republican candidate for congress) can carry Columbia by 2000 as Boyd Robison wrote to Markle & Co and to McNair at Hazleton and also to the Republicans here—and while our republicans here now decline to advocate withdrawal—they also say if Waller does withdraw by the influence of his region then they will not advocate nominating another one and then they will go for any man Opposed to Collins.

Now, Capt. Brockway declined to run under any circumstances,—hoisted Collins' name in the COLUMBIAN, and thus foiled the game of Klotz and Megargell to bolt a regular nomination.

C. B. BROCKWAY.

Brockway Congressional Club.

BLOOMSBURG, PA. August, 1880.

Sir:

This club is organized in the interest of Capt. Charles B. Brockway, and to promote so far as it can his nomination and election to Congress. It will be impossible for him to see personally the Democratic Voters of this county, much less those of the six other counties which constitute this District. Besides he is, and ought to be well known to all. We are also of the opinion that securing the county for a nomination is degrading in itself—wastes the time of candidates and of the voters,—and involves an outlay of money that a poor man cannot afford.

We will briefly state the reason why Capt. Brockway should be nominated.

He is a native of the county, and from boyhood has been an earnest, ardent Democrat and by his speeches, and as an editor, sustained the principles of his party.

As a member of the Legislature in the trying sessions of 1872-3-4, he was the acknowledged leader of the Democratic members of the House. He aided effectually in the measures which gave birth to our new constitution and many of the most salutary acts passed were drafted and advocated by him. It is not within the scope of this circular to specify all the beneficial legislation he accomplished, but it is enough to call attention to the repeal of the odious "Conspiracy" law, and the removal of the State tax on horses, mules and cattle.

His speech on the bill to tax anthracite coal had the effect to defeat it. Its passage would have placed the tax actually on the consumer, or it would have been deducted from the wages of the miner.

His greatest speech however, was on the Military Bill—a measure outrageous in every particular, unconstitutional in nature, oppressive in operation, and even in time of peace would make the civil subordinate to the military power. The Republicans were so struck with the force of Mr. Brockway's argument that they aided in defeating the bill. Even Gov. Hartranft was impressed with Mr. Brockway's objections, and at the opening of the next session sent for him, showed a new bill shorn of the objections to the former one, and asking Mr. Brockway to put it through if it was acceptable to him. Mr. Brockway made a few amendments, and then offered the bill, which was unanimously passed.

Another important act of his was the raising of a committee of which he was made Chairman to investigate the subject of taxes paid or due by the Railroads, Canals, &c., of the State. Although the investigation was hindered every way, the result was the return to the State Treasury from one company of $859,000, and the finding of over $3,000,000 due and unpaid the State. Mr. Brockway's report was unanimously agreed to, although three of the five members of the committee were Republicans.

In the debate on the Usury bill, he took broad ground for free money, or else no legalized frauds on the people like Saving Funds with usurious interest. The working men have reason to know that he is their friend. In 1871 he was their counsel at Harrisburg representing 70,000 men against $3,000,000, headed by F. B. Gowen.

So much for his civil life where he has been tested. Now as to his military record. No one familiar with the history of the soldiers from our county can question it. Testimonials from such men as Generals Meade, Hancock, Warren and others, with flattering notices in official reports,—a brevet commission from the United States—render details unnecessary. Gen. Hancock in a letter to Hon. Wm. F. Seward, Secretary of State from Carondelet, Mo., Nov. 7th, 1867, said among other things "I have the honor to state in his behalf [Capt. Brockway] that he served under my command as an officer of artillery in the 2nd Corps, Army of the Potomac and that he was a gallant and efficient officer." Towards the close of the war he was Hancock's Assistant Chief of Artillery, Gen. Hazzard being Chief."

Of him Major General Hunt, Chief of the Artillery of the Army of the Potomac writes:

HON. C. R. BUCKALEW, U. S. SENATE.

Sir:

I have heard that Lieut. C. B. Brockway formerly of the Pennsylvania Artillery has been prominently named for the appointment of Minister Resident of the United States at Quito.

Captain Brockway served as an officer of Battery F, 1st Penna. Artillery (Ricketts) throughout the war. His service as a lieutenant was always faithful and attentive in camp and campaign, gallant, prompt and skillful in battle.

He served in nearly all the principal battles of the army of the Potomac, and was specially distinguished at the battle of Gettysburg. On the promotion of Captain Ricketts, Lt. B. was selected as his successor in the command of the battery. He also served as Adjutant to Col. Hazzard, Chief of Artillery, 2nd army corps.

In all the difficult positions in which he was placed he served with credit to himself and advantage to the country, and sustained an excellent reputation.

The frequent transfers to which Batteries were subjected from one division or army corps to another necessarily broke their military records into fragments so far as their immediate commanders were concerned. This has operated to the disadvantage of their officers as it has deprived them of that recognition of service and the rewards consequent upon it which were their due.

As chief of artillery of the Army of the Potomac I therefore feel it my duty to testify to the value of Captain Brockways services and to express the hope that they may be recognized and rewarded.

I have the honor to be Very Respectfully your obdt. serv.

HENRY J. HUNT,
Major General Late. Chief of Artillery Army of Potomac.

Would not Capt. Brockway if elected be, as before, a good aid to his old Commander, Hancock? Where were his opponents during the war?

We do not defame any man. Falsehoods and exaggeration we leave to others. But we may add this. Our county has never had a Congressman in our present limits, and should claim it now as the apportionment next year may throw us again into a Republican District.

In 1870, without solicitation, Capt Brockway was nominated for Congress against Judge Mercur. The district had a republican majority of about 2,000. Even such an excellent candidate as Judge Elwell against Mercur had about 1200 majority counted against him. But Capt. Brockway made a determined fight, and despite office-holders, bribery, corruption, local divisions, seducing election officers, and false counting a majority of only 124 was all that could be scored against him.

In 1874 Brockway was nominated by Columbia County. His conferees withdrew because the County was not given proportional representation. On representation that the absence of Columbia county Conferees might lead to the election of Klotz, who was offering bribes THEN, at the request of Mr. Buckalew and Peter Ent, Brockway and his Conferees, including Lowenberg and Swisher, and the substitute for Col. Freeze, returned to Wilkes Barre. Hon. F. D. Collins was there nominated. But he gave a written pledge, signed by himself and Conferees that he would be a candidate for but one term and they conceded that next to Capt. Brockway and Columbia county. The pledge was broken the succeeding term—1876—and Collins was returned.

In 1878 Capt. Brockway again carried the county, over both Megargell and Ranck. The Conferences divided. He had, however, the votes of Columbia, Montour, Lackawanna, and Pike, and the contesting delegation from Luzerne,—fifteen of the twenty one Conferees,—a majority beyond question, and Klotz had but six votes leaving Luzerne as an undetermined contest, or which, but nine. Klotz's money, and a false report on the eve of election,—too late to refute,—gave him a reported majority of 95.

Against Dr. Megargell we have not one word to say. He is simply the stool pigeon of Klotz, and they train together. The bargain is that if Megargell is successful here, his conferees are to go for Klotz. Hence the latter's friends, by his money, presence and solicitation would again rob our county of a member, in favor of a stranger.

Look to your tickets, as the packages may be stolen or altered.

Mr. Ranck is a resident of Scranton, and Mr. Collins has already represented us four years from there, and THAT section has no claims upon us.

Klotz has none. By sworn evidence it is proved that he tried to bribe our Conferees last time for $1500. He tried it at every Conference. He furthermore agreed to ask for but one term, and bound himself not to ask for another, so that Columbia county might have a chance.

In principle, as is well known, Mr. Brockway is a Democrat to the core, but is opposed to rings, corrupt solicitation, and the mean acts of routine politicians.

He believes in the candidates named by the Democracy, in its platform, and in protection to Pennsylvania's industrial interests.

H. VERBY, Secretary. R. HARRIS, President.

Englishmen formerly opposed that American running horses were inferior to theirs but during the last two years Parties, Wallerstein and others from that were sent from this country to England, have won hundreds of thousands of dollars, for such Americans as the Messrs. Lorillard, James Gordon Bennett, &c. The Englishmen have investigated the reasons for the great success of the American horses, and find that they are kept in such fine condition by the constant use of M. B. HOW TO GET almost Everything.

Do you know how to get in the easiest way and to best advantage what you want for dress and house-furnishing?

First, how: Write for a catalogue; see what you can learn from it about the things you want. If samples can be useful to you, ask for them and state your wants so plainly that exactly the right samples can be sent.

Second, where: The place where goods are kept in the greatest variety; where they are sold for what they really are in respect to quality; where prices are lowest; where most care is taken to serve customers acceptably; and where you have the right to return whatever is not satisfactory.

There—no matter where you are—if you make your wants known and avail yourself of your privileges, you will get the best things in the best way, promptly and without trouble or risk; sometimes by mail, sometimes by express, almost always at less cost for carriage than the money you save in the price.

Harry English and His Crime.

BRIEF SKETCH OF THE CRIME FOR WHICH HE WILL HAVE TO ANSWER,

The recent capture of Harry English in Michigan, has awakened a lively interest in his case, and many of our readers are desirous of having the particulars of the crime with which he is charged, we reproduce the same from the Elmira Gazette:

"The crime for which English is to answer is one of the gravest known to law. A warrant had been issued for his arrest on a charge of forgery. Subsequently he removed to Caledonia, Elk county. Frequent attempts were made to apprehend him, but he carefully evaded the officers. Between four and five o'clock on Saturday, April 17, District Attorney Wurzel, Justice Thomas Burke and Constable Vollmer of St. Mary's, accompanied by Constable Warneth, of Benzinger township, went to the house in which English resided at Caledonia and surrounded it. As the story runs, several of the officers entered the house, and as they did so English started to run up the stairway. He was commanded to stop, and not doing so one of the officers fired at him. He ran into a room upstairs, and secured a Winchester rifle, and on the party coming up he thrust it out of the partially closed door and shot striking the constable, Warneth, from the effects of which he died shortly after.

Finding the avenues of escape guarded, and determined to gain the woods, English fired from a rear window upon Constable Vollmer, who was guarding the rear of the building. English then extended down and out and made a dash for the wooded mountain. As he was running District Attorney Wurzel shot at him, the ball taking effect in the calf of English's leg. This only disabled him slightly and he managed to gain cover and make good his escape. How the woods and mountain were scoured in vain for him is yet familiar to our readers. The gravest apprehensions were felt by the citizens of Caledonia and vicinity who had in any manner aided the authorities that English would return secretly at night and seek vengeance by either injuring them in person or property. So thoroughly agitated did that section of the country become that the Commissioners of Elk county offered a reward of $1,000 for the delivery of the person of Harry English at the jail at Ridgeway, the county seat. It is said the residents of St. Mary's and Caledonia agreed to swell it to the amount $1,000, and the commissioners of McKean county offered $200. English was seen at different times by persons with whom he was acquainted afterward, both in Forest and Warren counties. On the 3rd of June he met J. R. Borst, (a former resident of Weston's Mills, Pa.) at Ceader Springs Mich. Borst used to know him quite well and English approached him by the Masonic signal. They had a long talk, and in taking his departure English promised to return in a few days, evidently feeling that Borst would not betray him. He failed to come the second time, however, and Borst, in company with an officer traversed the country around but did not discover him. It was probably through information furnished by Borst that English was finally captured at Sheboygan last week. Sheboygan is quite an important city on Lake Michigan, at the terminus of the Sheboygan division of the Milwaukee, Lake Shore and Western railroad. It is forty-three miles east of Fond du Lac, and sixty-two miles north of Milwaukee. The people of the surrounding country are largely engaged in the lumber industry. Williamsport Banner.

Answer This.

Did you ever know any person to be ill, without inaction of the stomach, liver or kidneys, or did you ever know one who was well when either was obstructed or inactive: and did you ever know or hear of any case of the kind that Hop Bitters would not cure? Ask your neighbor this same question.—Times.

A Rough Old Farmer.

A Hartford jeweler recently directed the attention of a friend to a rough appearing old farmer sauntering down Main street, and remarked, "I've been worse sold on that man than any other in my whole business life." The man, fully threescore years and ten, wore shabby pantaloons, rough cowhide boots innocent of the slightest trace of blacking, a vest soiled in front and with the back partly in tatters, was in his shirt sleeves, without a collar, and his head covered by a tile fashionable many years ago. "That was about his style," continued the merchant, "when he dropped in at my store one day during the war and said he wanted to buy a watch. Judging from his appearance that he meant something in the future, after the scarecrow season was over and he had drawn his money, I didn't bustle around very lively to make a trade. I thought that about a $10 silver watch would close out his pile and shoved one across the counter to him. He merely glanced at it and asked, 'Don't you keep anything better?' This nettled me for a bluff I hauled out an American watch, one of the costliest we had in the store, worth $175 in gold, and gold was worth $200 then. He examined it carefully, asked the price, and then to my amazement said. "That'll do. He dived down into his pantaloons pocket and after fishing out of the way a roll of green backs as big as your hat he handed up a purse of gold, counted out of it the $175 shoved the watch into his pocket and walked out. You may imagine this excited my curiosity, and after awhile I ascertained who my strange customer was. He lived a few miles down the river and was worth enough to have bought out my whole establishment. Since then I haven't tried any bluffs on plainly dressed men. You can't always tell by a man's clothes what he's got in his pockets."

"Say, Susan, have you lost your appetite? Are you weak and nervous? If so, 'Dr Lindsey's Blood Seacher' is what you want."

At the Bavarian Industrial Museum there has recently been exhibited a new kind of flooring tiles made from asphalte in a very simple way. The drawing of the intended design is first made on coarse heavy paper. Then it is covered with bits of china and glass so as to form a mosaic. Lastly a border is made to the sheet, and liquid asphalte is poured upon it. After the whole has been covered, the paper is taken away with cold water and the tile is finished. This flooring is said to be handsome in appearance, and to resist damp for an indefinite period.

Drunken Wolves.

Henry De Criquelle, in a French work upon the natural history of Le Morvan, (a district of France), tells us that "in the Summer the wolves, like the gypsies, have not any fixed residence. They may then be met with in the standing barley or oats, the vineyards and fields; they sleep in the open country, and seldom seek the friendly shelter of the forest except during the scorching hours of the day. Toward the end of August I have often met them," says he, "in the vineyards, apparently half drunk, scarcely able to walk—in short, quite unsteady on their legs, almost plowing the ground up with their noses, and staring stupidly about them. I once came upon one partly hidden among the thick undergrowth and weeds on the edge of the piles of stones collected from among the vines. My presence aroused his growl, when rising lazily from among the bushes he stumbled and fell, being evidently incapable of going further. A salute from both barrels with small shot scarcely tickled his skin, but it brought him once more on his legs, though only to fall again, when, having reloaded, I advanced on him, and administered a double dose in his ear, which had the desired effect. The fact was he was quite drunk, although not disorderly. This inclination in wolves for intemperate indulgence in the fruit of the grape is vouched for by several authorities. It would appear that the wolves during the ardent heats of August suffer greatly from thirst, and in the absence of water take to the vineyards, and there endeavor to assuage it by eating large quantities of grapes—very cool, and, no doubt, very delightful at the time, but the treacherous liquor ferments, Bacchanalian fumes soon infect the brain, and for several hours these four legged topers are literally "as drunk as beasts," and entirely deprived of their senses.—All the Year Round.

In Canton, Bradford county, the fire works for Independence Day were so carelelessly handled that they all "went off" at once, giving the citizens a display which they will never again witness.

The little ones love it, and often cry for more—what? "Dr. Sellers' Cough Syrup," which cures them of coughs, colds and whooping cough.

An Irishman who had a pig in his possession was observed to adopt the constant practice of filling it to repletion one day and starving it the next. On being asked his reason for doing so, he replied: "Och, sure, and isn't it that I like to have bacon with a strake o' fat and a strake o' lane aqually, one after the t'other."

Mr. Bowen, of Gun Lake, Mich., says: "The people here cannot do without 'Sellers' Liver Pills.'" Try them.

Literary Revolution and

UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE

An Encyclopædia in 20 VOLS, over 16,000 pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopædia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for $10, in half morocco for $-5, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margine, bound in half Russia, gilt top for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedents in book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inaugurate a Literary Revolution.

THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint entire of the last (1879) Edinburg edition of "Chamber's Encyclopædia," with about 40 per per cent of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readers, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopædia in the field

THE GREAT MEXICAN REMEDY.

Thousands suffering from Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Liver and Kidney Complaints, Scrofula and Blood Diseases, should try the Great Mexican and wonderful discovery, which as a disease conqueror and health restorer, has no equal in modern medicine. The Great Mexican Remedy was first introduced into California in 1849, where in a few months it effected so many wonderful cures as to create a demand for the medicine from Maine to Florida. It cures all diseases from the worst Scrofula, to a common blotch, pimple, or eruption, while it clears and beautifies the complexion. In diseases of the Stomach, Blood, Liver and Kidneys it has permanently cured thousands of hopeless cases where all other known remedies had failed. One dose will cure any case of Sick Headache. Two doses will break up any ordinary cough or cold. Persons suffering with Heartburn, Waterbrash Sour Stomach, Biliousness, Costiveness, Piles, Palpitation of the Heart, Low Spirits, and kindred affections, will find the Mexican remedy a swift and sure relief. The genuine is placed before the public, under the following name:

Herbaline Bitters the Great Mexican Remedy.
